BIOLOGY

Objective: To create a herbarium bottle containing a preserved plant specimen, showcasing the structure and characteristics of a specific plant species.

Materials Required:

- A clean, dry glass bottle with a tight-fitting lid (e.g., a jam jar or pickle jar)
- A plant specimen (e.g., a small herb, leaf, or flower)
- 70% ethanol or isopropyl alcohol
- Water
- Glycerin
- A few drops of glycerin
- A label or paper for identification

Instructions:

1. Collect the Plant Specimen:

- Choose a small, healthy plant specimen with leaves, flowers, or fruits.
- Handle the plant gently to avoid damage.

2. Prepare the Plant Specimen:

- Gently wash the plant specimen with water to remove dirt or debris.
- Pat dry the specimen with blotting paper or a soft cloth.

3. Preserve the Plant Specimen:

- Place the plant specimen in a container filled with 70% ethanol or isopropyl alcohol.
- Make sure the specimen is completely submerged in the preservative.
- Seal the container and leave it for 1-2 weeks.

4. Prepare the Herbarium Bottle:

- Clean and dry the glass bottle thoroughly.
- Add a few drops of glycerin to the bottle.
- Place the preserved plant specimen in the bottle.
- Add enough preservative to cover the specimen.
- Seal the bottle tightly.

5. Label the Herbarium Bottle:

- Write the plant's name, family, and date of collection on a label or paper.
- Attach the label to the bottle.

Important Reminders:

- Handle the plant specimen and preservative carefully to avoid damage or injury.
- Make sure the bottle is tightly sealed to prevent leakage or contamination.
- Keep the herbarium bottle away from direct sunlight and heat.

Submission Guidelines:

- Bring the herbarium bottle to school on the designated submission date.
- Make sure the bottle is properly labelled and sealed.
- Include a brief description of the plant specimen and its characteristics.

Tips and Variations:

- Use a variety of plant specimens to create a collection of herbarium bottles.
- Add other materials like flowers, seeds, or fruits to the bottle for a more diverse display.
- Create a decorative label or design for the herbarium bottle.
- Do the worksheet uploaded on BBL App in your notebook.
